Civilian Problem Another Cambodia Headache

Premature Rains Bog Down U.S. Armor

By Peter Arnett WITH TASK FORCE SHOE-MAKER, Cambodia, May 4 (AP).—After only five days in the new war theater of Cam-bodia, American battle commanders are faced with two major problems.

One of them is military: Premature monsoon rains have washed out an important for-ward airstrip and the hundreds of armored vehicles spearheading the American thrust are, in down. The other is political: American ground troops have been drawn into the fighting among the civilian population in Cam-bodia. U.S. air strikes have partially destroyed the planta-tion town of Memot, villages are being burned, and thousands of civilians are fleeing for their lives. The Americans, who in Vietnam found difficulty in separating friend from enemy among the civilian population, now have a whole new set of problems in sorting out the Cambodians.

The imminence of the monsoon rains is a great source of worry to the operational commanders. Tactical planners apparently had hoped for six more weeks of cloudless skies, but two inches of rain fell on the red clay floor of Northern War Zone C yesterday, creating a sea of mud.

. Advice Is Queried

With new border crossings reportedly ready to go, logistics officers are aghast. The people who advised Nixon to start something like this, this time of the year, must be the same ones who advised him on candidates for the Supreme Court," a U.S. divisional planning officer commented

"Our problems mount every time another drop falls," he added. A few minutes later the clouds burst and the rain fell. in sheets for four hours. The armored force of more than 700 tanks and tracked vehicles constitutes the bulk of the American effort inside Cambodia. In past years Vietnam's mud has proved as formidable an obstacle to armor as the Viet Cong. Normal maintenance problems can slow a tank squadron to a snall's pace. Thick mud can stop it.

Possibly because of the im-pending monsoons, American forces have been dashing through the countryside—too rapidly, some observers think. "Some of these tank commanders are still fighting World War II," complained a sup-ply officer who has to get gasoline and spare parts up to ing their objectives they must be passing everything by."

Lightly Populated Area This rapid movement is one reason the civilian population has become involved. The Fishhook region, initially singled out for American invasion because it was thought to contain the headquarters for all Communist activities in South Viet-nam, is only lightly populated. By pushing north to Route ? and beyond, the Americans are amid the rubber - plantation hamlets and Cambodian farms. The Vietnam pattern is being repeated. Under a scorchedearth policy, the Americans are putting the torch to homes because they may be useful to Communists. Livestock is shot for the same reasons. Palis of smoke rose over the region yesterday. Clusters of houses smoldered. One young American tank commander was asked why he had hurned the last two hamlets he had driven through. 'T had orders to burn everything," he said. Less deliberate destruction is visible in the heavier populated area around the Mimot plantation, up to a week ago the largest functioning rubber plantation in Indochina.

But the inevitable has happened to the sprawling town of Memot. U.S. air strikes were ordered against the town today because North Vietnamese troops were reported there. "The whole place is blown away," commented a helicopter vilot as he flew over ft. American troops may be deployed to take the town and this would inevi-

Saigon Proclaims Truce May 19, Buddha's Birthday (It's Ho's, Too)

SAIGON, May 4 (UPI).-The South Vietnamese Foreign Ministry said today that government troops will observe a 24-hour truce May 19 in observance of Buddha's birthday. By an awkward coincidence. May 19 is also the birthday of Ho Chi Minh, North Vietnam's late president.

The U.S. command has followed the South Vietnamese in observing ceasefires in the past, but there was no immediate word from the American military on this one.

The Saigon government said the truce was planned for religious and humanitarian reasons." The last truce was for Tet, the lunar new year, in early Feb-rusry. It was marred by many incidents of fighting, as have been all other truces. Basterners record history on the basis of the lunar calendar,: which is determined by revolutions of the earth around the moon. Using the hunar calendar, Buddha's birthday falls on a different

Western date every year, Though this year Buddha's birthday falls on the same day as Ho Chi Minh's, government statisticians figure this could happen tably mean more destruction. American commanders have already yielded to the tempta-tion to push farther into Cambodis. They have blocked Cambodia's Route 7 in two places, one block being Pirebase North about 12 miles up the road from Memot. Helicopters carrying American strike troops range 20 miles inland on reconnaissance forays.

The scores of thousands of people in the operational area are caught between the Amer-icans on one side and the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese on the other. A new factor is the Khmer Rouge, the Red Khmer force, Cambodian equivalent of the Viet Cong.

"All this action could drive the Vietnamese population of the rubber plantations into the ranks of the Viet Cong. and the Cambodian people into the arms of Khmer Rouge, unless we take special care." commented one knowledgeable ob-

Special teams of public affairs experts were formed for use inside the border, hut they were given low priority for transportation. One such team said yesterday that it had been waiting on the helicopter strip at the rear headquarters of Quan Loi for two days to get in. Ammunition was going first.

Befugees Accumulate More than 1,000 refugees had been gathered up in that time in operations. Major problems of identifying and feeding refugees can be expected to shape up soon as U.S. forces thrust deeper into Cambodia. New American units reportedly ready to go in other border areas will place thousands more Cambodians in U.S. operational areas. More destruction can also be expected, particularly if Communist forces continue to occupy Cambodian towns on the major highways near Vietnam. In any relief operations, Amerlcan and South Vietnamese troops intend to make full use of their vast firepower.

When we move we move with everything, and the artillery and air comes along with us," an armored officer said proudly. This destructive power already wreaking havoc on the Cambodian countryside.

The Vietnamese units are eager to push deeper into Cambodia. When Lt. Gen. Do Cao Trl. commander of the biggest Vietnamese push into Cambodia, along Route 1, linked up with the Cambodian Army at Svay Rieng, he offered to push right through to Phnom Penh 100 miles away. Americans might similarly be tempted to free other Cambodian towns from Communist threat or occupation. The only problem is they might be swamped in both yesterday and try to explain what the administration was doing. They denied that Mr. Rogers had willfully misled the Senate Foreign Relations Com-mittee, and they dealt with the domestic politice of the Vietnam problem but they didn't deal with the larger political world

A Really Difficult Situation

President Nixon is up against a really difficult situation. Both the Soviet Union and Communist China have gone through political and economic crisis at home and they are still going through a savage competition with one another for control of the Communist world.

But lately, Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Communist party leader, with the support of the Soviet armed services, has apparently prevailed over Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, and is now taking a much bolder line in the Middle East. Meanwhile, Mao Tsetung, the Chinese leader, has got control of his domestic crisis and is now asserting himself in Southeast Asia.

This, according to President Nixon's advisers, is what Mr. Nixon is now reacting to in Cambodia. "Small nations all over the world." he said last week, "find themselves under attack from within and from without. If, when the chips are down, the world's most power-ful nation—the United States of America—acts like a pitiful, helpless giant, the forces of to-talitarianism and anarchy will threaten free nations and free institutions throughout the world. It is not our power but our will and character that are being tested tonight."

The heart of the political struggle here is not that President Nixon's analysis of the problem is wrong, but that he is fighting it in the wrong place. He has apparently been convinced, as President Johnson was before him, that one more military victory-this time 12 the Cambodian sanctuaries—will persuade the enemy to make peace. His political opponents, including many of his own advisers, think he is wrong.

To Sanctuaries Elsewhere

They are afraid that the enemy, driven out of the Cambodian sanctuaries, will retrest to other sanctuaries elsewhere in Cambodia or in Laos or even in China itself. They think the more the President defies the Communist world to submit in areas close to their frontiers especially when he has committed himself to withdraw American troops from Vietnam the more they will fight and the more wcapons Moscow will provide to avoid a Communist

This is the fundamental argument now in Washington, which divides the parties and even the President's own advisers. He is asserting that one more victory in the Cambodian sanctueries will force the enemy to negotiate a fair compromise settlement. His opponents don't believe it, and resent his argument that unless they accept his invasion of Camobdia "all other nations will be on notice that despite its overwhelming power, the United States, when a real crisis comes, will be found

There is general egreement here that the Communist world is now pressing hard in South-east Asia and in the Middle East, and that it is important to recognize this as a fact. The difference—and it is a fundamental difference—is how and where to meet this challenge.

President Nixon is saying it should be met in Victoam and Cambodia. He is falling back on the old anti-Communist, anti-intellectual, antiuniversity, anti-newspaper and television line to prove his point, and this is dividing the capital of the United States as it has not been divided since the days of Joe McCarthy.

Compulsive Escalation

With terrifying speed all the tragic errors of escalation are being repeated in Southeast Asia. Once again a President elected on a pledge of extricating the United States from the Vietnamese morass is embarked on a delusive quest for peace through widening the war. And each plunge down that road to disaster is followed post-haste by another and still another in a dismal replay of the futility ushered in by the initial escalation after Pleiku in February, 1965.

The large-scale air attack on North Vietnam by American fighter-bombers this weekend did more than shatter the bombing halt ordered by President Johnson 18 months ago. Coming just two days after the assignment of American troops to combat duty in Cambodia, the raid made it plain that the Pentagon is finding a receptive ear at the White House for its long campaign to strike at the enemy wherever its bases and supply lines may be.

This is a "domino" theory in reverse involving limitless risk and no discernible hope of success-a course rejected as too unpromising even at the height of the Johnson military expansion.

Unquestionably, the Nixon administration is encouraged by the conviction that the Soviet Union and Communist China are so busy with their mutual animosities that they will refrain from stepped-np action in support of Hanol and the other Communist elements in Indochina

Yet the history of all past escalation in this area has been that it stiffens the Communist will to resist, pushes up the death toll, brings no serious move toward the peace table and drives both Moscow and Peking into more vituperative anti-American posi-

This is a two-way process of gambling with human destiny. Much of the inspiration for the President's stance in Cambodia obviously derived from concern that Moscow's increasing aggressiveness in the Mideast stemmed from a belief that the United States was a paper tiger.

What makes the current escalation doubly dismaying is its panicky pace. On April 20, from the relaxed setting of his ocean-front refuge at San Clemente, President Nixon gave the nation a reassuring report on the progress of Vietnamization and pacification. He was able to "say with confidence" that both processes were succeeding so well that another 150,000 American troops could be brought home.

Ten days later a much grimmer President was on television with a warning that the United States was in danger of battlefield humiliation that could topple it into the status of a second-rate power. Since then the area and extent of United States involvement have broadened so rapidly that even the defenders of the administration's course have been left tongue-tied.

* * * The first embarrassment was the disclosure that the government Washington seeks to prop up in Cambodia was among the last to learn that American forces were en ronte to mop up Communist sanctuaries there. Comparable was the plight of such administration stalwarts as Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott cut adrift with White House-inspired statements that renewed bombing of the North was a remote contingency at the very time a hundred American planes were dropping bombs across the Demilitarized Zone.

The defeat in the Texas Democratic primary of Sen. Ralph Yarborough, a Vietnam dove, will no doubt be taken by many around the President as evidence of popular approval of his new tongh line. Nixon, by characterizing far-ont elements among his campus critics as "bums," already has provided additional fodder for fear that much of his sudden militancy in Vietnam stems from a desire to divert attention from inflation, unemployment and other difficulties as the congressional election moves into high gear.

The need in the conferences the President is holding with four key congressional committees is to get the focus back on deceleration of a war that, as Vice-President Agnew acknowledged Sunday, the United States cannot hope to win and that makes impossible the attainment of urgent national goals. Making the war bigger is a formula for calamity, not extrication.

THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The Legal Basis of Military Aid

The controversy over whether the President has authority to give arms aid to Cambodia is not primarily a constitutional question, as Sen, Fulbright seemed to intimate in explaining the opposition of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. It is necessary to remember that Congress in 1961 gave the President broad powers "to furnish military assistance on such terms and conditions as he may determine, to any friendly country or international organization, the assisting of which the President finds will strengthen the security of the United States and promote world peace . . . "Defense supplies may be given by means of loans or grants or members of the armed forces may be assigned under this act as advisers or training personnel."

There are numerous limitations upon this authority, however, and of course one of them is money. The President cannot spend funds that have not been appropriated, and Congress may attach specific restrictions to any spending bill. Officials say that no "unprogrammed" funds are now available, but this is not necessarily a barrier to giving some arms aid to Cambodia, since the law. permits the transfer of funds from one country to another and indeed from economic aid to military aid.

The situation is further complicated by the fact that the law authorizes the President to use up to $250 million without regard to the limitations laid down in the act if he should determine "that such authorization is important to the security of the United States." No doubt that would be a difficult finding to make in the case of aid to Cambodia, but the law has avenues and escape hatches which any administration can probably use on a limited scale whenever it thinks that arms for a country threatened by Communists are in the national interest.

It is also clear, however, that such a policy could not go very far without the approval of Congress. New appropriations would have to be made; indeed, the request for funds under the Military Assistance Act now before Congress would have to be modified. A special law freed the Pentagon from the requirements of the Military Assistance Act in giving arms aid to South Vietnam, Laos and Thailand, but it does not apply to Cambodia. As a practical matter, therefore, the President would be taking an enormous risk to embark upon a program of aid to the precarious new government of Cambodia without the full knowledge and approval of

U.S. Involvement in Cambodia

Europe very unhappily views the timely coincidence of the American push into Cambodia and the establishment of the Soviet Union in Egypt. The result of this etrong gestore in Southeast Asia culminates with the American hesitation in the Near East. It is to be feared that the entanglement in Cambodia . . . will lead directly to the Soviet permeation in the Near East. Nixon has confused his sincerest friends abroad.

-From Frankjurter Allgemeine Zeitung.

The results (of sending tycops into Cambodia) will be felt at the SALT (Strategic arms limitation talks between the United States and Russia) consultations in Vienna. at the (Four Power) talks on Berlin, and in the Near East. Nixon took office with the sloran that the age of confrontation had ended and the age of negotiation had begun. Now he chooses confrontation—even with the opposition in his own country-because he sees no alternative . . . we can only hope that America finds the energy and patience that are necessary for success in this new policy. -From Die Welt (Hamburg).

Once again military mania is guiding U.S.

actions in Southeast Asia. Evidently bewitched by the impression of himself as a great American president, Nixon has chosen to make things worse by yielding to repudiable rhetoric . . . Nixon makes himself a copy of Lyndon Johnson as Johnson acted in his most rash moments.

-From Dagens Nigheter (Stockholm). * * *

Nixon's decision is an extremely serious challenge to the U.S. Senate, where a clear majority has spoken out against any kind of assistance to Cambodia. His decision is contrary to the Senate's efforts to prevent a unilateral action by the chief of state as happened following the Tonkin incident of 1964, an incident which turned out to be quite

Nixon's Cambodian Gamble

By Joseph Alsop

Nixon has now proven that he is a very brave man. Even decision have been forced to grant that much.

It remains to be seen whether he is also a lucky man-which is just as important for a successful political leader. But if he is even reasonably Incky, it should be noted that he has made a good gamble

What makes it a good gamble is the simple fact (which no U.S. senstor ever seems to understand) that no troops can fight, or even continue to exist, without supply. For years, Hanoi has not only sanctuary-base ereas in Cambodia, but has also fed the troops in the sanctuary-base areas with Cambodian fish and rice; and Hanoi has nourished the war in two-thirds of South Vietnam with pons and ammunition brought in through Cambodia. Thus the Cambodian supply lines have also been lifelines. And these lifelines have now been cut by the Cam-bodian Nationalist government.

Initial Responses

The importance of those life-lines to Hanoi could be seen in the initial responses to the Nationalist triumph in Phnom Penh. On the one hand, the units in the sanctuary-base areas moved out, to gain control of as much of Cambodia's neighboring rice land as they could. On the other hand, and more important, North Vietnamese elements were sent far forward, to threaten Phoom Penh when President Nixon acted.

The immediate aim of his action was to remove the threat to Phnom Penh by taking the enemy in the rear. In all but the northern corner of Cambodia, in fect, the North Vietnamese divisions should now be caught between the devil and the deep blue sea—the deep blue see being the Cambodian Army and the hostile Cambodian popula-tion, and the devil being the South now attacking across the border.

The key to the situation, for the long pull, is again the problem of supply. For the long pull, obvious-ly, most of the North Vietnamese units in Cambodia simply cannot survive there, without supply lines of any sort. Those in the north-east corner can do so, by getting their supply over the Lacs trails. But with any luck, all the more important sanctuary-base areas should become untenable in the criticism of America; e.g.,

This year, Hanoi has made a great effort to expand the capacity of the Leos trails. Supplies brought through Leos may there-fore replace supplies from Cambodie in lower II Corps, and even, perhaps, in the empty provinces of north III Corps. But in most of III Corps and all of the Delta, the enemy units, from guerrilla plateon up to North Vietnamese regiment, must eventually lose the means to fight if their Cambodian lifeline is not restored. That means, in turn, that subetantial redeployments to the more vulnerable northern corps areas will eventually become possible. Consider the Delta, for instance. Here North Vietnamese regiments had to be sent in, as a desperate measure to boister the Viet Cong structure, which was in danger of collapse.

Grim Moment

Now both the North Vietnamese regiments and the Viet Cong troops must probably look forward to a grim moment when their ammunition will begin to run out. When that moment comes three or four South Vietnamest brigades should be enough to hold the Delta, instend of three regiments, as at more troops set free. Thus the enemy will finally have to face forces in Il Corps and I Corps that will be nearly double in strength the forces that now defend those areas. And that should be enough to break Hanoi's teeth. In sum, President Nixon's ble has its grave risks, as any wartionalist government to make a two thirds of South Vietnam time move always has. exciting all of a sudden. months—something like 20 of them, in fact—the Conservatives have held an enormous lead in the opinion polls; when asked how they would vote if the general election were to take place next day, people have been giving answers which indicate a gap between the two parties larger than any recorded since political opinion polling began, and which, if translated into terms of votes and seats, would have given the Conservatives a majority of anything up to 400 (in a House of Commons with 630 members).

· No amount of insistence that the whole point of the general election is that it is not in fact taking place next day has been able to alter this astonishing imbalance. And there have been other pointers; the by-elections in the last year or two have registered massive swings against the Wilson government; and the municipal elections have seen the wholesale alaughter of Labor candidates, with their men being ejected from town and rural councils they had controlled for years (including the government of London, which they had held unbroken since 1935, until a landslide put the Tories in in 1967). No wonder that, as I reported here a few weeks ago, tward Heath, the Conservatives leader, was at last talking and behaving like a man who is convinced he will soon have the frontdoor key to No. 10 Downing Street in his pocket. And suddenly, the wind is full of straws. First tiny sign that the tide might have turned was provided by the recent municipal elections. (These, apart from London, have not so far included the big cities, which poll in a few days' time, and which should produce hard evidence.)

Here and there, . Labor made gains, though since the previous elections had come at a time when the government party was at its lowest ebb, it would have been surprising if this had not been so, In particular. Labor made great inroads into Tory strength in London; not enough to snatch back control of the council from the Conservatives, but enough to give them a fright, as well as to wrest control of the inner area of the city. which gives them the making of London's education policy.

And then (there have been no parliamentary by elections in significant seats lately)...the opinion polls began to tell a strange story, and to tell it in unison, too.

We have four regular political polls in Britain: Callup, which is the oldest established and the results from which appear in the Daily Telegraph: National Opinion Polis, which has marginally the best record of accuracy in recent election forecasting, and which has its reports in the Daily Mail; Marpian, a comparative newcome judgment on which cannot yet be safely pronounced but the predictions from which are carried by The Times; and the Harris Poll, which although familiar in the United States of course, is new in Britain, and is carried by the Daily Express.

Proposal Would Ease Entry Restrictions

WASHINGTON, May 4 (AP),-Pressure is mounting in Congress for a sweeping overhaul of a fiveyear-old law intended to open a new era in U.S. immigration policy. Strong protest against the law by such traditional friends of the United States as Italy, Canada, Mexico and Ireland; complaints about excessive hureaucracy, and clear signs that the law is not working have produced a flood of proposed legislative remedies.

The latest proposal, offered by a key member of the House immigration subcommittee, aims to lift restrictions on immigration from Canada and Mexico.

Movies in Cannes: An Unimpressive Strawberry Statement

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss CANNES, May 4.—An epidemic of movies about the current campus unrest is upon us. The latest specimen of the new school is "The Strawberry Statement," an American-made product which had its world premiere at the Cannes Festival

Its tantalising title is explained in the program. A Colum-bian dean, it seems, remarked that the news that his students voted one way or the other interested him no more than their opinion of strawberries.

Israel Horovitz, the young author of "The Indian Wants the Bronx" and other striking plays of the American avantgarde, has written the screenplay, which is derived from a novel by James Kunen. He has contributed some mordant dialogue, but it is the milieu and not the characters that dominate. Talented Designer Meets Enterprising Journalist...

By Hebe Dorsey

PARIS, May 4.— Scali is a typically Parislan fashion story à la Mimi Pinson. Like many great bouses, including Cardin, it started in an attic

Once upon a time, there was a cute, blonde girl with a Siam-ese-kitten face, named Chantal. She had talent but a shy, un-business-like nature. One eve-ning, in a Saint-Germain-des-Pres boile, she met Elle, a dark, exotic and enterprising young man who was tired of being a fournalist. He saw her potential and encouraged her to try

So Chantal left ber job as assistant to Karl Lagerfelt a year ago and started designing long scarves under the name of Scali. Scarves have proved the most important fashion accessory in years but Chantal's were special. They were ultra-long (some are almost six feet) and hand made with her original designs on the lovellest Lyons silks. Within a year, Chantal and Elie, who started at rock-bottom with $80 as capital, sold 100,000 scarves, picking up international orders from Bendel's. Neiman-Marcus. Bloomingdale's, Saks Fifth Avenue and I. Magnin. "We are booked solid until August, 1970," said Elie.

They moved from their little room into a large locale on the Rue de Lille and, as Elie proudly pointed out, "two tele-seller has been a 1900 motif in beige, brown and bois de rose with stylized peacocks all over. Chantal's scarves are still going strong but, for the first time this season, she also showed a small ready-to-wear collection. It is really a group of shirts and blouses for after five. Her approach is simple but effective. She loves beautiful silks, refined details and original hand-painted patterns. One of her best numbers is a beige crêpe de chine tunic with a rust and gray Grecian frieze at the cuffs and bem. She puts it over a simple, crushed velvet midi skirt.

This is going to be a big year for blouses and Chantal has produced a number of excellent ones. Her best-seller is a black chiffon blouse with huge, balloon sieeves and black braid trimming at pockets, cuffs and bem. In a more romantic, almost Victorian mood, she has also made a blouse of crêpe georgette with a small ruffled and huge cuffs. Many blouses come with black braid belts or chokers and Chantal is also beginning to design her own evening bags.

To go with the gypsy trend that is going to be with us that is going to be with us through the summer, she has also contributed a new, minishawl of velours frappe and chiffon with huge fringes—the mini-shawl wraps dashingly around the shoulders. Neiman-Marcus ordered dozens of them. But Scall is not only a success fashion story. As in Mimi

Pinson, it is also a love : . and Chantal is now Mrs.

Going in Search of the True Baltic Flavor butter" and served with dill-

By Jan Sjöby

STOCKHOLM.—The staple foods of the Swedes in the early 1970s appear to be things like pizza and pastrami, porterhouse steak, paprika schnit-zel and piccata milanese.

The old Swedish restaurants in Stockholm-places in turnof - the - century brown - andmauve with solid wooden tables, featuring meatballs with cream sauce and lingonberry sauce and quarter-inch beef with onions-have been turned into imitation English pubs with electronic ovens for the kidney ple, or Italian trattorias where the meatbells carry the flavor and fragrance of oregano and tarragon

There is an exception, and an important one: Zum Franziskaner, 44 Skeppsbron, on the Baltic-side waterfront of the Old Town.

Standard Fare

Despite its German-sounding name—German was a leading language when the house was founded near an old Franciscan monastery—the "Zum" is about as Swedish a place as can be found in present-day Sweden. Standard items on the prix-fixe menu (about $1.50 including hors d'osuvra) are manorhouse steak with cream sauce (the Swedish answer to chicken every Sunday,) boiled cod with mustard sauce, hash à la Bell-man, salted salmon with creamed potatoes and dillweed, and butter-boiled herring with eggand-dili sauce.

That is what is called husmanskost which in Swedish. means literally "houseman's food." It has been impossible to determine exactly what a "houseman" does for a living but husmanskost is delicious. The pièce de résistance, though, at Zum Franziskaner. is strömming in all forms, Or almost ali forms, Strömming is Baltic herring, a dwarfed subspecies of the common herring, Chipea harengus. It looks dif-ferent, it tastes different and it's prepared in a different way, although marine biologists maintain that the Baltic herring is just another herring.

Baltic herring has been a staple food for the tribes around the Baltic for longer than anyone can remember. It can be fried, boiled, grilled, saited, pickled, cured, marinated or fermented.

The chefs at the "Zum" know all the tricks. The most popular variety is stekt strömming-Baltic herring fried in flavored boiled potatoes. It is on the menu every day, from nine in the morning to nine in the evening.

Bengt Granström, the proprietor, who took over the place in 1960 from his father, who acquired it in 1928, maintains that there is only one kind of strömming that won't be served in his establishment. That's strömmingsflundra: Two boned fillets of herring, placed together with dill and parsley in between and fried in butter, a very popular dish in other

Swedish restaurants. "That's baby food," says Mr. Granström, "Our guests wouldn't go for that sort of stuff, Remove the backbone from the herring and you have no her-

Fed Rejects U.S. Measure Of Accounts

Balance-of-Payments Data Seen Misleading

By H. Erich Heinemann WASHINGTON, May 4 (NYT).-The Federal Reserve has bluntly repudiated the official government measurement of the nation's international balance of payments. "Neither of the two conventional measures of the overall balance of payments," the Federal Reserve said in the April Issue of its monthly bulletin. "serves to convey the changes in the underlying international situation of the United States from 1968 to 1969."

"The liquidity deficit (of $7.1 billion in 1969, against a $200 mil-tion surplus in 1968)," the Fed stated, "greatly exaggerates the exteot of the worsening."

"On the other hand." It said. "the large surplus in the official settlement balance in 1969 ($2.7 billion, up from $1.6 billion the year before) cannot be taken as a sign of fundamental improvement, since a major element was a huge inflow of foreign private liquid funds that is essentially interestsensitive and may be easily reversed whenever interest rates move rel-atively lower in the United States."

The liquidity balance measures changes in the short-term U.S. liabilities to foreigners, while the official settlements balance essentially measures changes in the doller holdings of foreign central banks and other official institutions.

The Fed did not address Itself directly to the complex issue of how best to measure the baiance of payments, but it presented data on a measure that it called the "adjusted overall balance," which, in context, it clearly preferred to either of the two measures now being published by the Commerce Department.

Under the adjusted overall balance concept, the nation had a deficit of $6.4 billion in 1969, a worsening of $4.4 billion from the $3 billion deficit recorded in 1968.

The adjusted overall balance excludes from consideration changes in liabilities to foreign banks which, by definition, include foreign branches of U.S. banks), as well as a variety of special government transactions.

The overall balance thus tries to eliminate the distortion in the liquidity balance created by the huge borrowings of U.S. banks in the Eurodollar market through their foreign branches.

In a strict sense, articles in the ficial statements of the seven-man Federal Reserve Board unless they are specifically designed as such. But the view clearly represented a consensus among senior staff of-ficials at the Fed, and as such

News Analysis

War Fuels Economic Uncertainty

By Hobart Rowen WASHINGTON, May 4 (WP).—Now that President Nixon has widened the Indochinese war, all bets on economic conditions are off.

One need only recall the early days of the Vietnam war, and especially the escalation of hostilities in 1965. Promises then were that expectations are used to be a second the second three records. penditures would not rise very much—promises that are likely to be repeated now.

But defense spending skyrocketed $13 hillion in fiscal 1967 and another $10 billion in fiscal 1968, creating the massive deficit responsible for today's inflation.

The simple fact about the new involvement in Cambodia is that it too is an escalation, how-ever Mr. Nixon described it.

Therefore, when the administration goes to Congress in mid-May—as it must in connection with debt limit legislation—and lays out revised estimates for fiscal 1971 expenditures and receipts, it will have one of two choices:

It can bring in a realistic budget, which would allow for major changes in the Southeast Asia situation and, with it, proposals for tax legislation to cover the contingency of greater

Or, it can blithely assume that there are no changes necessary on the fiscal front to match the altered situation on the war front.

More likely, there will be a papering-over of the potential costs, and whatever changes in the hudget are announced will instead be a consequence of the declining economy which has reduced receipts, and pressures from Republicans in Congress to relax tight budget pressures which might cost GOP seats in November.

The budget deficit figures Mr. Nixon announced on Feb. 1—$1.5 billion in fiscal 1970 and $1.2 billion in fiscal 1971—are already ancient history. Sen. Jacob Javits, R., N.Y., estimates the fiscal 1970 deficit at $3 to $5 billion. In New York and on Capitol Hill, financial experts were estirrating—pre-Cambodia—that the fiscal 1971 deficit would be $6 to $8 billion. One expert guesses the calendar 1970 red ink total at $6.5

Based on Troop Withdrawals

The original fiscal 1971 budget shows a drop of $6 billion in projected defense spending. Thanks to Charles L. Schultze's fine analysis published by the Brookings Institution, we can see that the entire decline can be traced to the projected troop withdrawals.

But as Murrey Marder of this newspaper has pointed out, the President's Cambodia action is a concession that the Vietnamization program on which the troop withdrawals are based is not

If there is a delay in troop withdrawals, the real defense budget will go up in fiscal 1971. A bunching of withdrawals at the end of the fiscal year, for example, would cancel out perhaps half of the $6 billion saving. And if troop withdrawals were cancelled, which is certainly a possibility, not only would the defense budget for 1971 be in the ash can, but longer-range considerations would not be pleasant to think about.

Whatever Mr. Nixon does about facing up to the fiscal problems that may stem from his gamble, it will still be true that the United States is suffering from a bad hangover in terms over would be gone, business and labor are still out to get all that the traffic will bear. Any reader of these financial pages knows that there has been a rash of price increases over the past months, the latest offered by Bethlehem Steel-in the face of declining steel production.

On the labor side, tough negotiations are shead in many industries—for example, Walter Reuther is reported to be readying a record wage package demand in this year's auto industry bargaining.

Inflation Still Not Curbed

What we come down to is that Mr. Nixon's anti-inflation policy, relying exclusively on broad, classic monetary and fiscal tools, has aucceeded in cooling the economy, but not in curhing in-

The beginnings of a small recession are at hand. Since Mr. Nixon's election in 1968 the Dow Jones industrial index has plummeted. Mr. Nixon's response to the rapid declines of last

"Frankly, if I had any money, I'd be buying stocks right now."

That was an unhappy echo of meaningless similar assurance by John D. Rockefeller as the market crashed in 1929.

It takes action, not presidential rhetoric, to instill confidence in financial markets. Wall Street is in a hearish mood because of the recession in the economy, and especially because of the uncertainties about our policies in Southeast Industrial production is down about 3 percent so far, and 1,000,000 more persons are out of work than was the case in February, 1969. Overtime hours—the source of much consumer spending for autos, TV sets, vacations, and other luxuries-are down sharply. So are corporate This is not yet the picture of a cerious recession. It is not the biggest downturn this country has ever experienced. But it is a recession of some dimension—not just the "painful adjustment" that the administration prefers to call it. Moreover, all of the promises of easier money have not brought interest rates down very much. Businessmen are more and more anxious to see the Federal Reserve System make good on its open commitment to a less restrictive money

But the budget deficit that seems to be generating-and on top of that, the new Cambodian crisis—may make it impossible for Fed chair-man Arthur Burns to deliver everything he had

The budget has gotten out of hand since early this year, in part because of a shortfall in revenues and in part because of fears that the economy might be slipping downhul faster than anticipated. The President's chief economic adviser, Paul W. McCracken, promised last week a better deal for those who could be patient; economic recovery—plus a reduction in inflationary pressures.

But now comes Cambodia, and while no one can be sure at this point of the extent of the economic impact, it seems clear that Mr. Mc-Cracken's assessment abould be placed in the category of a pious hope, not a probable reality.

The stock market will bounce back!

No question. - But an investment in real estate usually doesn't bounce at all, especially in a professionally managed real estate fund.

We at ICT strongly believe in stock market growth potential. After all, we manage three stock funds, The Dollar Fund, Fund of New York and Fund of Nations. However, most investors want a stabilizer in their portfolio. Some investors want only a stabilizer in their portfolio.

That is why we recently formed Realstock-Real Estate Stock Fund N.V.

a mutual fund investing in international real estate, seeking capital appreciation and income from a professionally managed portfolio of properties that are not subject to stock market fluctuations. Just subject to strong, steady

So, our 24-year U.S.LP. Growth Bond pays 114 % compounded annually. For 24 years.

Which is unlike some people. Who promise you the moon. Take your money. And then conveniently lower their interest rates. U. S. I.P. takes money too seriously to play games with it. And taking care of your money antalis an even greater responsibility than taking care of our own.

You can invest in any freely convertible currency. Have full capital protection. Guaranteed growth. Pay no sales charges or U.S. taxes. And nobody has ever lost a penny with U.S.I.P. Just circle your choice below and

SOCIÉTÉ GÉNÉRALE DE BANQUE

Highlights of 1969 balance sheet:

-Largest Belgian bank.

- Net profit: 24% increase. - Total deposits and bonds: 129,500 million Belgian francs against 116,700 million

Branches and subsidiarles in 18 countries. Société Générale de Banque bas just published its Annual Report which was presented to the shareholders at the General Meeting on 28th April 1970. Met profit for 1969 amounted to 952,500 million Belgian francs against 765,100 million Belgian francs in 1968. The dividend was raised from 125 B.F. to 130 B.F. for existing shares and to 65 B.Fr for new shares,

The capital was increased in 1969 to 4,200 million Belgian francs by creation of 536,766 new shares and incorporation of 58.2 million Belgian francs transferred from the free reserve. Long term resources were, on the other hand, increased by 1,500 million Belgian francs by the floating of a convertible and subordinated bond issue.

Total belance sheet as of 31st December 1969 amounted to 198,900 million Belgian francs against 169,500 million Belgian francs as of 31st December 1968.

Deposits and bonds totalled 129,500 million Belgian francs, an increase of 12,800 million, over the year.

Credits of various kinds made available to the private sector totalled 85,200 million Belgian francs, while the facilities placed at the disposal of the government and government bodies totalled 63,700 million Belgian francs.

Enhanced by the expansion of the world economy, the economic growth of Beigium exceeded all expectations. The growth rate of the national gross product amounted to some 6% in real terms, one of the highest rates in the past decade.

The increasingly rapid pace of expansion of international trade, which has characterized the trend of last year, has enabled the bank to make a substantial increase in their dealings with foreign countries, particularly in foreign exchange operations and the financing of exports; these hit, in 1969, the record figure of 503,000 million Belgian francs for the Belgian-Luxembourg Economic Union. The Bank concluded in 1969 a number of financing agreements for the export of industrial equipment to various countries.

Oo the other hand, the bank's participation in the financing Pool of Credit export amounts to 3.750 million Belgian francs.

In short term financing of import/export transactions, acceptance credits arranged by the bank represented about 38% of the total amount of the Belgian Banking

The action of the Bank on the international scene was given strong support from its affiliates abroad, the network of which covers the main financial places of the world, namely New York, London, Luxembourg, Geneva, Latin America, Far and Near East; those banks operate a total of 90 branches, in 23 countries. The number of foreign correspondents continued to grow. Balances in accounts opened in their name or in their subsidiaries' names totalled, as of 31st December 1969, 40,000 million Belgian francs, as compared with 28,000 million Belgian francs by the end of 1968.

The Bank, on the other hand, endeavoured to assist, to the fullest possible extent, foreign companies planning to invest in Beigiam and participated quite actively in the management of its investment trusts: North American Funds "NAF" A (yield) and B (growth) and Valeurop, which specializes in investments in European Securities, mainly in the Common Market.

Société Générale de Banque increased its participation in Bondtrade, which s now almong the first dealers in the European secondary market of International

The Portfolio Management Department experienced further growth in number of investors, especially foreign investors, who increasingly call upon them for service or information

The year 1969, which was characterized for Société Générale de Banque by an appreciable expansion of their resources, proved rewarding not only from the point of view of profits, but also in view of the expansion and the promotion of their services to customers and foreign operations,

This announcement appears as a matter of record only.

BRIDGE

By Alan Truscott

The recent death of Albert Rose, the English expert, deprived the world of international bridge of one of its most engaging personalities. One of the few true amateurs at the top of the international tree, he represented Britain in three world team championships and one world pair champion-His best performance was in 1960 in Turin, when the British team of which he was a member led throughout the World Team Olympia only to be overtaken by France in the final round. The diagramed deal was played on that occasion in a match against an American team. Rose held the South cards.

and overcalled with two spades after West had opened one dia-mond and had been raised to two diamonds. East pushed to three clubs, reluctant to sell out to two spades and knowing that his partner could return to three diamonds if he chose, and he did choose.

The club bid on his right strengthened South's hand, and he continued to three spades. Perhans expecting his partner to hold more than he did, West ventured a double.

West led the diamond ace and shifted to the heart king. South won with the ace in duning and seized the opportunity to finesse the club queen. When this won he played three high trumps, leaving West with a winner. He continued with his remaining diamond, forcing West to win with the king.

cashed his winning trump and played the heart queen. If South had ruffed, he would have been left with two club losers and been down one trick. But when he discarded a club West was in trouble. He had only red cards remaining a situation that South had been able to judge from the bidding and play-and dummy had a winner in both suits. So South was able to win in dummy and discard his remaining club loser, making his contract for score of 530 points.

It is unusally informative and full of pertinent details which he has expertly manipulated and arranged to fill out and color the larger picture. It is surprising. how, by the end of the book, the Indian subcontinent has managed to assume a knowledgeable shape and how the problems begin to make sense in terms of the people and the land By quiet and reiterative references to the variety of beliefs, sects and languages, he conjures up for the reader the complexities and the distinctions that divide this great Asian nation. Though his tone throughout is neutral, in these chapters on various Indian religions he is more effective than a satirist could be in pointing out the enormous gulf between the lofty professions of a faith, the language in which it is expressed and the very mundane, vulgar qualities of the men and women who lead them. It is difficult to locate a divine spark in these gurus, these spiritual lights.

Yet the evidence of their with the sacred books of the past may have come from the same human material. Great art. to use an analogy, has no necessary tie with the immediate condition of the men who create it. Mehta's account of the there of a religious relic, Mohammed's hair, from a mosque in Srinagar in Kashmir makes vibrant the touchy atmosphere in which the people live, as it makes clear the nature of the dispute between India and Pakistan. Ex-President Nixon

WASHINGTON.—"I would rather be a one-term President, thon a two-term President at the cost of seeing America become a second-rate power."-From President Nixon's speech to the nation on April 30, 1970.

"Good evening, ladies and gentlemen. I am Walter Cronkite, and today, May 12, 1973, I am sitting here in San Clemente, California, with former President Richard Nixon, who, as you know, decided not to run for a second term in 1972.

"Mr. Presideot, you've been out of the White House for a few months now. How does it feel?"

"Weil Walter, I'd like to make one thing perfectly clear, I miss the White House as any-one who lived Buchwald there does, but I have no recrets. As you know I've joined the law firm of Nixon, Agnew, Mitcheil and Carswell and we're doing very well."

"Mr. President, could you pinpoint the moment you decided not to run for another term?" "I can't teil you the eract time. It could have been when John Lindsay defeated ma in the primaries in New Hampshire. I decided at that time I would work for peace and the only way I could do that was to eliminate myself as B presidential contender, Besides, Patdidn't want me to run for sn-

"Mr. President, your decision to involve us in Cambodis has been interpreted by many as the reason that you could not run for B second term. Do you concur with this?"

"Well, I'd like to make this perfectly clear. I decided to go into Cambodia as a way of eoding the war. Now the Communists did not see it this way, and, therefore, they moved into northern Thailand. Then I was obligated to invade Thailand to clear out their supply bases there. After we did that, the Communists still refused to talk peace and they started supplying northern Thailand from Burma. We couldn't allow them to use Burma as a dagger against our boys, so we launched the Burma offensive in bopes that Hanoi would see reasoo.

"Instead, the North Vietnamese started supplying Burma from Red China, so in order to protect our boys, we worked out a joint attack with the South Vietnamese oo Red China.

"This strategy was approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and I was only following out the policies of three presidents: Eisenhower, Kennedy and John-

"Why do you believe the Com-munist forces would never agree

"Well, as you know, I was committed to withdrawing troops from Vietnam. The more troops I withdrew, the more military action I approved. This proved a strain on our armed forces. When we invaded China, I had only 100 American soldiers left. When the aggressors didn't respond to our invasion at the table, I had to ask the American people to send in a million more

"And that was when you had the youth strike and every draftee in the United States refused to go."

"That's correct. That was in the fall of 1971. We had to jail 2.390.876 men for draft evasion. "As you know, we didn't bave enough jails to put everyone in, so I had to authorize an enormously expensive prison-building program. This money, which should have gone for military expenditures, caused inflation

"So I made my decision to devalue the dollar, which caused the riots, which forced me to call out the troops, who, unfortunately, had no choice but to fire on the American protesters in the streets."

"Mr. President, what part do you think the students played in your decision not to run?" (The following excerpts were eliminated from the program for security reasons at the request of Mr. Nixon.)

Covent Gardeners Get Ready for

300th Revel

LONDON, May 4 (AP).—The fruit, flower and vegetable traders of Covent Garden will eat, drink and be merry Saturday to celebrate the 300th anniversary of their cabbage patch in the heart of Loodon.

Not even the prospect of the eod of the Garden, scheduled in two years' time, will disturb the revels.

Some 1,500 clerks, 800 salesmen and 350 fruiterers and greengrocers will dance, drink, box each other, hold barrow races and watch Punch and Judy shows in the street. Brass bands will thump out auch fruity airs as "Yes, We Have No Bananas," "Tve Got a Luverly Bunch of Coconuts" and "Tve Never, Never, Never Seen a Straight Banana."

The celebration will mark the charter granted by Charles II setting up this former garden of a oow extinct conveos as a fruit and vegetable market. Coveot is a cockney version of the word 'convent'

Coup de Grace

The irony of the celebration will be that, just as royalty started Covent Garden, royalty will administer the coup

Prince Philip, husband of Queen Elizabeth II. will attend, make B speech aud press a button. The button will remotely detonate a charge some three miles across the River Thames in Nine Eims to clear the ground for R new $230 million ($72 million) site for the Covent Garden handles 15 percent of the fruit and vegetables grown in Britain. It is crammed into six and a half acres just behind the Strand, within hailing distance of Adm. Nelson in Trafalgar Square. At Nine Fims It will have more than 64 acres all to Itself. The Garden comes to life at about Covent Garden Theater by Rowlandson, circa 1816. ... the flower stalls are bunched outside. :

5 a.m. One of its glories is that the visitor can drink right up to 8 a.m. because Covent Garden pubs have a special license to cater to thirsty porters. The cormal closing time in London's pubs is 11 p.m.

There have been changes over the years, but huge trucks laden with cauliflowers or peaches or melons from Mediterranean lands still heave and gruot their way up the narrow network of old streets to the Garden.

One of the great prewar sights of London-a Covent Garden porter balancing up to 20 round baskets on his headis never seen now. Tradition has given way to speed and produce is shifted in

Traders are bypassing the market more and more because of its congestion. They can buy and seil more cheaply from ports and freight train depots. But ancient loyalties die hard and fears of the new complicate men's emotions.

"It's tradition," one of the stall owners argued passionately. "This is one of London's tourist attractions, mate." Like its produce, Covent Garden is something of B salad, with the dignified. neo-classical Royal Opers House kneehigh in vegetables and Bow Street Magistrates Court just round the corner.

The Garden began as a grandiose development designed by the great architect, Inigo Jones. Jones modeled it on a piazza at Legborn, Italy, but the penny-pinching Earl of Bedford who owned the land cut out the frills. The place became dilapidated over the years and nobility moved ont. The once grand houses becama drinking dens, gambling halls and brothels. Now there are mostly warehouses and offices with some of the upper floors turned into smart apartments.

At Nine Elms, there will be sutomation, fork-lift trucks, multi-story parking lots and produce rolling up in freight trains. Modern equipment will do away with the ancient hierarchy of the market toat divided the porters into pitchers (the men who carried the produce in), plain porters (who carried it out) and stand men (who worked in the warehouses or stalls). The hereditary system of B Covent Garden job being handed on from generation to generation will also end because less labor will be needed.

But as the bunting is being put np and the pubs stock up with oceans of beer for the party, the cockney Covent Gardener is still incredulous about moving.

'When? Go on, tell me when," porter demanded. "Once it was Caledonian Road, then somewhere in Essex. Next time it will be China. Come back in ten years and we'll still be here, mate. You listen to me...

PEOPLE:

"When my sister and I were growing up, she was made out to be the goody-goody one. That was boring, so the press tried to make out I was wicked as hell." It happens to the second-born of the best regulated of families, of course, but when your big sister is oddson to become the next Queen of England it can get a little sticky, or so, says Princess Margaret in the current issue of Look magazine. Margaret. quoted by Andrew Duncan in an article entitled "Margaret and Tony, the Royal Black Sheep," recalls that "Whenever I got a lot of publicity I used to get a lot of letters. Most of the nice ones came from America. They'd say, How marvelous of you to do that, for they thought we were all terribly stuffy and Victorian. Then there were critical letters accusing me of misreported things I hadn't done, mostly anonymous and mostly from England. I minded that very much. When I grew up, it was, No. darling, I wouldn't do that.
I don't think people would ununderstand.' Of course in those days one never gave Interviews ... I used to get appallingly upset, with no way of hitting back. I was an absolute wreck after some of the publicity, but luckily that's Ril over... Now I could do pretty well anything, apart from tearing one's clothes off and jumping into the fountains of Trafaigar Square - which I don't want to do..." Still, the bum rap persists. Quoted in the same article is an unidentified Lord Lieutenant who says: "There are very few invitations for [Margaret] to come and open things because she is un-popular. She's relegated to opening schools and things like
